Guidance and Counselling Centres for Parents, Children and Young Persons

Düsseldorf's dedicated guidance and counselling centres for children, family and young persons provide support and help to children, adolescents and adults by identifying and dealing with individual and/or family crises.

The spectrum of concern is broad, encompassing straight-forward parenting issues throughout early childhood, primary and junior school or puberty, as well as questions relating to your child's development, problems with forming and maintaining relationships, impaired performance in school, worrying behavioural traits, emotional disturbances or family conflict arising from parental separation/divorce or contact/access issues.

As a young person, you may be looking for answers to questions concerning all aspects of friendship and love; perhaps you are in the middle of crisis or are being stressed out by your parents.

There is a choice of 16 guidance centres across Düsseldorf's municipal area operated by diverse agencies catering for children, young persons and families. In addition, there are eight more guidance centres providing a range of specialised help and support to those who need it.
